

THE PERSONALITY GAME

SETTING UP

Cut out the slips of paper below, and hand three random slips to each person in the group. You may need to photocopy this sheet so that there are enough slips of paper for everyone.

HOW TO PLAY

Once the game begins, players have two minutes to swap their slips of paper with other players. Players should trade for slips of paper whose phrases most accurately reflect their personality. Each slip of paper has an image of a Wimpy Kid character on it. Once the time runs out, players should count how many slips they have with each character on. The character that appears the most on the player's slip is the character with whom they have the most in common!

I think the American Civil War is fascinating!

I sometimes store things in my belly button.

I have fallen asleep at school before.

I have slept past 3 p.m. on a Saturday.

I am afraid of clowns.

I think this game is totally lame.

I think society these days is too reliant on technology.

I still sleep with my stuffed animals.

I wish all the teenagers in this town would get shipped off to Alcatraz.

I can read the thoughts of animals.

I think bunnies are awesome.

I think Greg Heffley is a great role model.

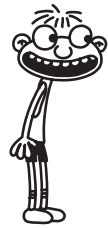

I think speaking Spanish is easy.

I think hugs are the best medicine.

I think my parents' music taste is terrible.

I like to chew my toenails.

I can remember being born.

I hide snacks where I can find them later.

I would trade in my best friend if I could get someone better.

I spend more money on music than video games.

I have the greatest best friend in the whole wide world.

I sometimes eat while sitting on the toilet.

I keep an enemies list.

I think that just being together is the most fun of all.
